Stef, I am trying to find the scales used for fuel measurement in ASTM 3053 tests and struggling. Should I expect to see that information in test reports? FYI, while I was looking, I came across a test report where the manufacturer's instructions listed "targeted particulate emission rate." The instructions also define the end of the test. I thought you might want to take a look at the test report, so I attached it. Instructions start on p 34 (pdf page #).
